More and more consumers are searching for authenticity and are willing to pay higher prices for typical food products that are deeply rooted in the culture and tradition of their territories of origin. For small-scale rural producers, this new trend signifies a major opportunity. It frees them from having to compete on price with standardized products in commodity markets and rewards them for the maintenance of biodiversity and cultural heritage in niche markets.

STRATEGY
UNIDO is implementing a project in Morocco with funding from the State Secretariat for Economic Affairs (SECO) of the Swiss Government. Launched in 2013, the “Projet d’accès aux marchés des produits agroalimentaires et de terroir” (PAMPAT) aims at improving the performance, market access and socio-economic conditions of argan oil and the prickly pear value chains in Morocco.

UNIDO is strengthening the organization and governance of the selected value chains, improving the productivity, quality compliance and product development of small-scale rural producers, and enhancing their position in both domestic and export markets. UNIDO is also helping to ensure that the products comply with the requirements of recently introduced geographical indications, in order to position them in higher niche markets and allow the producers to obtain a premium price and higher revenues. PAMPAT will also improve the environmental sustainability of the value chains.

The project includes the organization of the first national competition of terroir products and a south-south cooperation component, which envisions: a) exchanges of experiences between Morocco Tunisia and Egypt, where UNIDO is implementing a value chain project also financed by SECO on Medicinal and Aromatic Plants; b) the participation of UNIDO in three regional trainings on Geographical Indications as a tool for rural development targeting sub-Saharan countries.

The project has been designed and is being implemented in close cooperation with the Ministry of Agriculture and local stakeholders. Special attention is placed on supporting young entrepreneurs, women and producers from disadvantaged regions. The traditional products are deeply rooted in local rural communities. By adding value along the entire value chain the project offers promising prospects in terms of improving livelihoods, creating jobs and promoting sustainable and inclusive local economic development.

A twin project, also financed by SECO, is being implemented in Tunisia, where the harissa, fig of Djebba and the prickly pear value chains have been selected.

KEY INFORMATION
Project Objective
To improve the market access and socio-economic conditions of producers in selected value chains

Argan Oil Value Chain Beneficiaries
Over 100 cooperatives (50% of existing cooperatives), more than 30 enterprises (20% of existing companies), FNADUA (which represents around 250,000 rightholders of Argan trees), support structures of the value chain

Prickly Pear Value Chain Beneficiaries
At least 400 farmers (10% of total farmers), 3 existing cooperatives involved in the processing of prickly pears, at least 2 private companies, 1 packing house with the capacity of 10,000 tonnes, support structures of the value chain

Implementing Agency
United Nations Industrial Development Organization (UNIDO)

Donor
State Secretariat for Economic Affairs (SECO)

National Counterpart
Ministry of Agriculture

Project Duration
4 years (September 2013 - August 2017)

Budget
2.878.516 EUR

Contact
Fabio Russo (Project Manager, UNIDO, Vienna) f.russo@unido.org
Ebe Muschialli (Project Coordinator, UNIDO, Rabat) e.muschialli@unido.org